

Q1: Im still working in backend, but this sprint with Hedy. I feel like i understand our backend quite well, but there are some things that i still dont understand. I kind of know what they do, but i dont understand them, so i have difficulties interpreting error messages and things like this. In the future i would like to understand better how our backend works, and to do this i will try and go through the code and explain to myself what everything does and if i can do that then i know ive understood it OK.

Q2: Since Hedy was new to backend this sprint, ive gone through the backend and tried to explain everything to her. I think i did an OK job with this since i get the feeling that she now understands the backend. However, i dont know if that is thanks to me or if she went through the code herself. In the future, i would like me and Hedy to understand our backend even better and this is probably more of a team effort than individual efforts.

Q3:

This sprint i am Scrum master. It was fun to be head of our meetings and formulate meeting agendas. This has been a great experience and i learn new things every meeting. We extended our sprint to be two weeks long so i will be scrum master next week aswell. Next week i would like to help our team make even better planning for the week. This will help our team so that everyone knows exactly what they should do and maybe how much time it will take.

Q4:

This week me and Hedy implemented a function to add and save customers. In earlier sprints, this wouldnt have been so hard because i had Yenan with me who is really good at programming and had worked in the backend since the beginning of the project so he understood everything about it. This was not the case this week, so me and Hedy had to figure a lot of things out on our own, but we managed to deliver this function eventually, which felt great. Next week, i would like to continue learning backend and complete the rest of the tasks in backend.
